

The National Flag of our country is a red flag with five stars. At the flag-hoisting ceremony, the national anthem, March of the Volunteers, should be played and sung, and all should stand in solemnity and observe the rules for the occasion.

We should face and pay eye salute to the rising Flag or do as otherwise required. No one shall commit any conduct of disrespect for the dignity of the Flag.

Our national emblem features Tian'anmen beneath the five shining stars, encircled by ears of grain and with a cogwheel at the bottom.

A flag-raising ceremony is held at Tian'anmen Square every day. I watched it once at the Square when I visited Beijing.

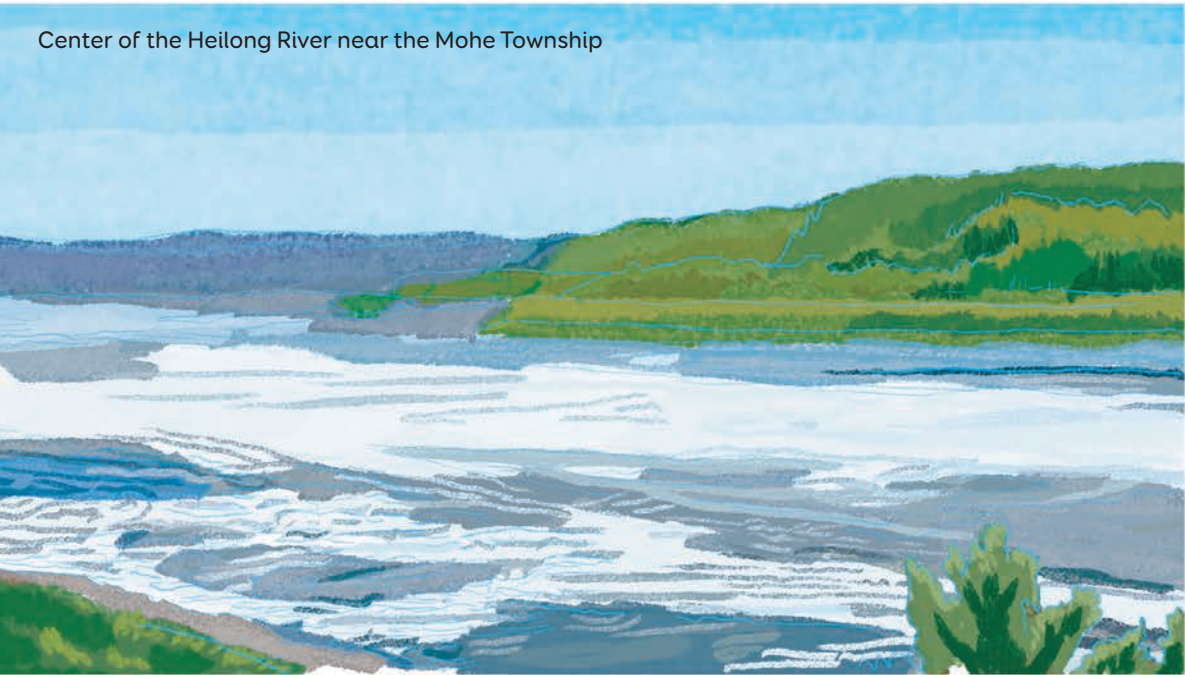

The People's Republic of China is our motherland. Beijing is its capital. 1 October is our National Day.

The national flag, emblem and anthem are the symbols of our country. All citizens and organizations should respect them and defend their dignity.

China is a country with both a vast landmass and expansive territorial waters. Located on the east side of Asia, the western shore of the Pacific Ocean, it is the third largest country in the world, covering an area of about 9.6 million square kilometers.

China is a beautiful country where the Great Wall twists and turns, the Yangtze and the Yellow Rivers flow peacefully, and majestic mountains like Mount Qomolangma, the highest mountain in the world, stand sublimely.

China is a vast country. Its territory stretches from the center of the Heilong River near the Mohe Township in the north to the Zengmu Reef of the Nansha Islands in the south. It extends from the confluence of the Heilong and Wusuli rivers in the east to the Pamirs in the west. China has a highly diversified climate from the north to the south and a remarkable time difference between the east and the west.

Located at the heart of Asia, this significant geographical advantage makes Hong Kong a vital hub connecting the Mainland with the rest of the world.

A man's country always comes before his home. Hong Kong is an inalienable part of China, a beloved treasure of the motherland. A mother loves her baby as much as a baby loves his / her mother.
